Ground has been broken for the new Marketing Milk plant at Grayslake. The gravel used on this work is being hauled from the John Dupre pit at Channel Lake.

The last meeting of the Grayslake Village Board, the fact became known that the village is about $3500 on the wrong side of the ledger. The Grayslake Times predicts that they must vote a bond issue to pay off this indebtedness. It can never be made up out of the general taxes and as it is our debt, it is up to all of us to pay it off.

Farmers in Racine and Kenosha counties who have large stocks of onions and cabbage in storehouses are being hard hit at the present time. Onions are selling for 20 cent a bushel and cabbage $7 per ton. One of the largest cabbage growers in that district said that cabbage ought to bring $25 a ton, considering the cost of production. In speaking of seed onions he said that brought only 35 cents a bushel, when the price ought to be $1.50. Last year at this time the price was around $3 a bushel.

Work of Collecting 1920 Taxes to Start Soon

The work of collecting the 1920 taxes for Waukegan and Lake county will start soon, according to an official statement made by County Treasurer Roy W. Bracher.

He says the plan followed this year will be somewhat different than that of other years. He plans to have offices maintained in each town in the county and will name a collector for each office, as heretofore, but the tax books will not be sent out as has been done heretofore. Instead of this plan each collector will be given tax receipts.

Bills will be sent out to all taxpayers who then will go directly to the collector, pay the tax, and receive the receipt which has been made out in the county treasurer's office. This will have the tendency of expediting the work to a considerable extent.

In the past it has been the plan to leave the taxbooks with the individual collectors for a period of two months or more. This year the receipts will be left with the collectors but two weeks after which they will be sent back to the county treasurer's office. Taxpayers who do not avail themselves of the opportunity to pay within the first two weeks in their own communities then will have to come to Waukegan to pay. By keeping the taxbooks in the office of the county treasurer it will be possible to accept money and make out duplicate tax receipts for people who may find it more convenient to pay in that manner.

Mr. Bracher is of the opinion that the plan that is to be followed this year will reduce the cost of collection.

Beet Growers Hold Meeting Recently

At a largely attended meeting of Racine and Kenosha county sugar beet growers recently in Corlies, Wis., a unanimous decision was made to empower the officers of the Racine and Kenosha association to place contracts for the growers at a figure to be not less than the cost of production. The officers were given authority to employ legal advice before any signatures are attached to contracts.

This action came after a lengthy discussion in which it was pointed out that the manufacturers had offered $7 per ton, but it developed that not a grower present was able to grow beets for that figure. Many expressed their intention to abandon growing beets if no better figure than that could be obtained. It was shown in communications sent to each member by the state organization, that the cost of raising one acre of sugar beets in Kenosha counties would reach a total of $103. This was based on the following items: Rent of land, $12; fertilizer and application to replace that removed, $25; plowing, $3; preparation of land, $1; seeding, $1; seed, $4; cultivation, five times, $5; labor, $30; lifting, $3; hauling back of the ear, during this time Mrs. Longman and two younger children were sick with the flu. On Saturday noon smoke was noticed coming from the roof of the house which was caused by sparks falling from the chimney. Neighbors responded to the call and the fire was soon extinguished before much damage was done.

The following directors were elected: A. J. Piper east district between Racine and Kenosha counties; H. A. Lubenau, Trevor; A. R. Turner, Truesdale district; Frank Cunningham, Union Grove; Harvey Nelson, Dale's Crossing; W. E. Tucker, Sylvan; M. Larson, Corlies; Henry Hoss, Franksville; E. E. Lewis, Galtiff; J. C. SUPPOSED AUTO BANDITS MAKE GET- AWAY IN LAKE CO.

Tried to Pull Trick in Kenosha, When Officer Kirsch Came on the Scene, the Bandits Started a Gun Battle, Whereby the Officer Received a Wound in Making Chase

WHEN LAST SEEN WHERE HEADED TOWARDS L. ZURICH

Last Saturday evening some little disturbance was created in our village when two automobiles drove in town and the parties making themselves known as deputy sheriffs of Lake and Kenosha Counties in pursuit of auto bandits, they made search of our local garages and then proceeded on their journey towards McHenry County.

The purpose of their visit we learned was a chase after three auto bandits. The chase started in Kenosha in the morning after the trio, suspected of being automobile thieves were trying to sell a Ford sedan in Kenosha, when Officer Kirsch was sent out to arrest them. The three opened fire and Kirsch was wounded. The trio then sped southward on Sheridan road with Officer Kirsch in pursuit. He was compelled to abandon the motorcycle and commandeer an automobile. The running gun fight continued until they arrived at a point between Milburn and Wadsworth where Officer Kirsch's machine became so hot he had to give up the chase at Gurnee.

Kirsch stopped at Gurnee to have the arm dressed. Two other Kenosha motorcycle policemen picked up the trail, which led toward Gurnee and then southwest.

Sheriff Green, Deputies and the Waukegan police joined in the chase, of which lasted until evening and then after every town and village was visited in search of the fugitives.

One of the officers in pursuit stated he believes he wounded one of the fugitives as he was close enough to get a goods hot, but ran out of ammunition.

The latest report is to the effect that the trio made their escape thru Lake Zurich and then possible getting into Chicago.

Wedding of Our Local School Teacher

Fredrick G. Weber, agriculture teacher of the township high school for the past year and a popular young man among the boys of the village as well as the pupils of the school, made a trip to his home town in Pana, Ill., last week end.

The ceremony taking place at the bride's home in Pana on last Saturday evening.

Albert Hall to be Assist- ant Stat's Attorney

Attorney Albert Hall is to be the Assistant State's Attorney of Lake county in place of Ralph Dady, who, when the Board of Supervisors a few months ago refused to raise the salary of the assistant from $2,400 a year to $3,000 announced that he would retire March first.

State's Attorney A. V. Smith announced that starting Monday, the work of assistant will be carried on by Mr. Hall as Mr. Dady finishes up his duties as assistant prosecutor Saturday evening.

Mr. Hall assumes the position on the basis of $2,400 a year which was the amount fixed by the supervisors.

Mr. Hall is well known in Waukegan where a greater part of his life was spent. He is the eldest son of John E. Hall, who for many years was connected with the American Steel and Wire company and was foreman of the Red mill.

It is recalled that after Col. Smith announced he had appointed Mr. Dady as his assistant that both the colonel and Mr. Dady appeared before the Board of Supervisors and asked for the increase in the assistant's salary from $2,400 to $3,000 a year. The board was almost a unit against making the change declaring that they felt the salary of $2,400 a year for the assistant state's attorney was adequate.

WHERE IS ANTIOCH'S PATRIOTISM?

When Walking the Street Last Tuesday, I Only Noticed
Three Flags

WHY THE LACK OF SPIRIT?

The only realization of a patriotic holiday in Antioch, is when the banks close, now isn't that a fine example for our visiting neighbors, our shoppers and traveling salesmen.

As I walked up the Main street last Tuesday morning, one of our local farmers asked me the question "why the American flag over the News office?" In return I said, "My dear man do you mean to tell me that your own flesh and blood (referring to his sons) served under those colors and you also bought Liberty bonds and ask me that question not knowing it was Washington's Birthday, well now I can't blame you, you knew it if you stopped to think, and I have to admit you had your eyes on those colors, which made you ask that question, but when you noticed that their was only one American flag unfurled to the breeze and that one flying over the "News office", where by if you had seen a number of them flying, say, over the village hall, schools etc., it would have come to mind at once that it was a patriotic holiday."

In answer to the "why" all I have to say there is more patriotism in the frozen country of Greenland than in our little village. A fine example for our little boys and girls going to school and soon to be grown up American citizens, ask their parents this question, "why don't the American flags fly today, it's Washington's Birthday?"

My dear readers don't get slack in this spirit of flying the colors, think of the days when the boys were over, at that time you could't fly enough flags.

From one who served under the colors.

SENATE HOLDS UP ALIEN RUSH

Bill Setting 355,000 as Limit Passed and Sent to House.

ONLY TWO VOTES AGAINST IT

Measure Holds Fourteen Months If Made a Law—Harrison of Mississippi Leads Fight to Make Act More Drastic.

Washington, Feb. 22.—The senate voted to restrict immigration into the United States between April 1, 1921, and June 30, 1922, to a maximum of 355,000 persons.

It passed the Dillingham bill by a vote of 61 to 2 after amending it to limit admissions from any country to 3 per cent of the number of natives of that country residing in the United States in 1910. The only votes against the measure were cast by Senator Reed of Missouri, Democrat, and Senator France of Maryland, Republican.

At the same time, the senate went on record against the Johnson bill passed by the house suspending all immigration for a year. It rejected the Johnson bill by 43 to 10. Senators Borah, Jones of Washington, and Willis, Republicans, and Senators Ashurst, Beckham, Harris, Harrison, Hoffman, King, McCellar, Myers, Overman, Pittman, Tamm, Tamm, Underwood, Democrats, supported the Johnson bill.

The measure now goes to conference. No serious difficulty is anticipated in getting the differences of the two houses adjusted.

It is contended by some advocates of the Dillingham bill that it will be far more restrictive than the Johnson bill for the reason that the provision in the latter permitting the admission of relatives of immigrants already arrived furnishes a loophole for wholesale evasions.

Senator Dillingham said he was unable to state whether the measure would permit the admission of enough immigrants during the next year adequately to supply the country with "black and shovel" labor.

Senator Harrison of Mississippi, Democrat, led the fight to make the bill more drastic. He first offered an amendment limiting admissions to 1 per cent. This was beaten by a viva voce vote. He next offered the amendment for 3 per cent and it was carried. Senator Harrison also proposed an amendment to change the basis of computation to the number of naturalized citizens. This was beaten without a roll call.

An amendment offered by Senator Smith of South Carolina struck out the provision giving the secretary of labor authority to admit individuals if such action is justified as a measure of humanity. This was adopted.

Senator Phelan of California raised the Japanese question. He told the senate that the Japanese in Hawaii were obtaining naturalization papers by taking advantage of the act passed during the war to facilitate the naturalization of aliens enlisted in the army. No less than 500 of them have obtained papers in this manner, he said. He proposed an amendment to remedy this condition.

Senator Colt of Rhode Island, chairman of the immigration committee, said that raising the Japanese question might defeat the bill and Senator Phelan did not press the amendment.

Senator Reed bitterly condemned the bill. He declared conditions had been greatly exaggerated by propagandists and told the senate the bill was as "narrow as the middle ages" and belonged to "the era of the thumb screw and rack."

If the house agrees to the senate amendments the bill will take effect April 1, 1921, and remain in effect until June 30, 1922.

The bandits fled, hastily pursued by postal agents and police.

The President-elect stated he would be glad to consider Captain Tethow for appointment to a post in the labor department.

SENATE PASSES TARIFF BILL

Fordney Emergency Measure With Temporary Duties on Farm Products Approved.

Washington, Feb. 18.—After weeks of tedious debate, the senate passed the Fordney emergency tariff bill imposing temporary duties on farm and live stock products. The vote on the passage was 43 to 30. The bill now goes back to the house for concurrence in the many amendments added by the senate. From there it will go to the President for his approval or disapproval.

Relief was expressed that President Wilson will veto the tariff bill. The smart amendment would place the tariff at one cent a pound in addition to the present duty of the same amount.

The amendments adopted would provide rates as follows: Butter and butter substitutes, 8 cents per pound; cheese and cheese substitutes, 25 per cent ad valorem; fresh milk, 2 cents per gallon, and cream 5 cents per gallon.

RAILROADS ARE IN RUINS

Statement Out in New York Says Not Fewer Than 20,000,000 Peasants Are Starving Along the Volga River.

New York, Feb. 21.—A description of apparently serious conditions in Russia under the Bolshevik administration, as taken from Soviet newspapers and other documents, is given in a statement issued by A. J. Sack, director of the Russian Information Bureau in the United States.

The statement declares that not fewer than 20,000,000 peasants are starving this winter along the Volga.

The "Economic Life" (Economic Life) says that "news is already beginning to reach us from the central provinces of famines having set in among the people and about the wholesale extermination of cattle for lack of fodder."

A Bolshevik commissary, M. Boguslavsky, writing in the official Pravda, says:

"The workingmen are without footwear, rubbers and even without as much as a needle. Truly, they are living much worse than they did before. We are bound to admit that the Soviet power has failed to do for them the most indispensable things."

The official Bolshevik Izvestia of December 20 contains the text of a speech by Leon Trotsky, Soviet commissar of defense, before the eighth congress of Soviets, in which he declared:

"At present 64,000 versts (30,610 miles) of Russian railroads are destroyed, so that only the central part, about 15,000 versts (9,000 miles), remains intact. Three thousand bridges and 30,000 telephone and telegraph lines have also been destroyed and we have about 61 per cent of idle locomotives."

The recently appointed commissar of means of communication, Mr. Yemshin, speaking on the same subject, said:

"Out of a total of 38,000 telephones along the railroad lines of Russia 32,500 require major repairs. The electric signal apparatus must be completely overhauled. The upper part of the roadbeds is in catastrophic condition. The repair shops are mostly in ruins and their machinery has been denuded of important parts."

The statement declares that popular revolts against Bolshevik rule are taking place. An anti-Bolshevik "green" army, composed mostly of peasants, is reported to be operating in southern Russia.

The revolts against Bolshevik power, the statement adds, are being suppressed with the utmost cruelty. A proclamation issued by an "extraordinary commission" in southern Russia threatens that all risings against the Bolshevik will be suppressed with implacable severity and declares that all those aiding or concealing members of "white" or "green" armies will be shot and their property confiscated.

MRS. J. M. CRAIG, of Los Angeles, Calif., who says no one can feel more grateful for what Tanlac has done than she does. Dealers she has gained twelve pounds and her health is now better than in years.

"Of all the people who have taken Tanlac, I don't believe there is anyone who feels any more grateful to it than I do," was the statement made recently by Mrs. J. M. Craig of 674 1/2 East Fortieth street, Los Angeles.

"Like so many other families during the influenza epidemic last year we all had it, and my own illness, together with the worry over the rest of our family, brought on a case of genuine nervous prostration.

"I was so weak I couldn't even sweep the floor, and during the day I would have to lie down four or five times. I tried to walk but found out half a block was all I could stand before I gave out. Nervous spells came on me often.

"Every medicine I tried failed to reach my case until finally my husband urged me to try Tanlac, and I am indeed thankful that he did, for it proved to be just what I needed.

"The first two bottles didn't seem to help me. I guess that was because I was so extremely laid off, but on the third bottle I could tell I was improving and that gave me more hopes than ever of getting well.

"My improvement from then on was rapid and by the time I had taken five bottles of Tanlac I was better and stronger than I had been in years. I was sleeping soundly at night and had gained twelve pounds in weight.

"That was several months ago and from then until now I have been in as good health as I ever was in my life and have been doing all the housework by myself.

"It is simply remarkable how Tanlac has built me up and I have told everyone of my friends and relatives what a wonderful medicine it is."

Tanlac is sold by leading druggists everywhere.—Adv.

WOMEN NEED SWAMP-ROOT

Thousands of women have kidney and bladder trouble and never suspect it. Women's complaints often prove to be nothing else but kidney trouble, or the result of kidney or bladder disease.

If the kidneys are not in a healthy condition, they may cause the other organs to become diseased.

Pain in the back, headache, loss of ambition, nervousness, are often times symptoms of kidney trouble.

Don't delay starting treatment. Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, a physician's prescription, obtained at any drug store, may be just the remedy needed to overcome such conditions.

Get a medium or large size bottle immediately from any drug store.

However, if you wish first to test this great preparation send ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle. When writing be sure and mention this paper.—Adv.

A girl seldom begins to take life seriously until she has been up against one case of unrequited love.

Catarhal Deafness Cannot Be Cured by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. Catarrhal Deafness requires constitutional treatment. HALL'S CATARRH MEDICINE is a constitutional remedy. Catarrhal Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result. Unless the inflammation can be reduced, your hearing may be destroyed forever. HALL'S CATARRH MEDICINE acts through the blood on the mucous surface of the system, thus reducing the inflammation and restoring normal conditions.

Circulate free. All Druggists. B. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio.

A hot temper will make others cool toward you.

WASHINGTON SIDELIGHTS

War of the Senate and House Ladies

WASHINGTON.—Behind the party warfare in Washington there is another war, more implacable and more relentless than the struggle recorded in political bulletins and by special correspondents. It is the social war of the women, a war in which no quarter is given or taken, a war in which there are no armistices nor peace conferences nor treaties.

And now active hostilities threaten. The senate ladies have decided upon a course of action in vindication of their cerulean blood. They propose to receive their little visitors, "not singly, but in groups. The basis of the groups will be seniority of service. That is to say, ladies whose husbands have been senators for 20 years will form one group, and the wives of ten-year senators another, and so on. Each group will have its own particular Thursday.

Now it is evident that these receptions cannot be held in private houses. And that is just where the cream of the whole business comes in. It is exactly here that the senatorial ladies score heavily over their poor benighted sisters of the house of representatives. The senatorial ladies propose to use one of the fine chambers of the senate office building, which would be admirably adapted to the purpose. But the house of representatives ladies cannot demand a similar privilege from their own particular branch of Congress, because, being so much more numerous, there is no room large enough for the purpose.

It seems likely that the senate office chamber will be the scene of the stately ceremonials, with the senate ladies divided into appropriate groups, holding a sort of court, perhaps seated on a raised dais, while the callers file past them and make their obeisances. There may even be orders as to the kinds of dresses that are to be worn, and ushers, and all the rest of it.

And the fact that these ceremonials are held under the senate roof will naturally give to them a sort of official status.

No wonder the house of representatives ladies are up in arms about the whole business. Not that they are surprised, Oh, no!

Packers' Mystery: Who Is "Diamond T"?

WHO is "Diamond T"? The Congressional Record contains a long statement by Senator Norris of Nebraska, in which is said, among other things:

"The investigation by the senate committee on agriculture disclosed the existence of a mysterious character who was very valuable to the packers in giving them advance information of possible legislation in Washington. This character was never designated by name. Whenever reference was made to him in the packers' memoranda it was by a character drawn with pen and ink. This character was represented by the letter 'T' inclosed in a rectangular figure, the shape of a diamond.

"It is quite evident that 'Diamond T' was a very important person. Nothing was developed in the evidence that ever disclosed anything that he had written or anything to which his signature was attached. Reference to this character only appears when information is given from one official to another that certain information had just been received from 'Diamond T'."

"How much 'Diamond T' received in the way of compensation, or who he was, will perhaps always remain a mystery. That he was some one high in official councils, and therefore a very expensive character, and that he was able to give the packers exceedingly valuable and inside information, will not for a moment be questioned.

"When the men who were dealing directly with him go upon the witness stand and deny any knowledge of the identity of this mysterious individual, they not only convince the honest man that they are guilty of falsehood, but they make themselves ridiculous in the eyes of honest people."

Nominations for Officers of U. S. Army

IN THE debates over promotions in the army it crept out that there are 11 nominations for major general, as follows:

Maj. Gen. James W. McAndrew, chief of staff of the American expeditionary forces in France.

Maj. Gen. Henry T. Allen, now commanding the American forces in Germany.

Maj. Gen. David O. Shanks, corps commander First corps area, and during the period of active hostilities commanding general of the port of embarkation at New York.

Maj. Gen. Adelbert Cronkrite, George W. Read, Omar Dundy, William M. Wright, Charles H. Muir, Charles T. Menoher and William G. Hana.

All of the men in this list, with the exceptions of General McAndrew and General Shanks, were corps commanders in the army in France; that is to say, having distinguished themselves as division commanders they were selected by General Pershing for higher command, and the armistice found them each in command of from 60,000 to 100,000 or more men.

The list of brigadier generals nominated comprises 22. The remainder of pending nominations, numbering 5,634, covers officers in all grades from colonel to second lieutenant, which are new appointments in the army. All of them were in the emergency army, and they were selected by a board of which General Pershing was chairman, in accordance with the army reorganization act of June 5, 1920.

PEACE AT GRAVE OF "DEVIL ANSE"

Long Estranged Brothers Clasp Hands Over Coffin of Notorious Feud Leader.

DONE WITH FIGHTING

Dispute Over Ownership of Hogs Started Feud Between Hatfield and McCoy Which Lasted for Years and Cost Many Lives.

Logan, W. Va.—Capt. Anderson (Devil Anse) Hatfield, one-time Confederate army officer, and for many years one of the most famous feudists in the southern mountains, was buried recently beside his two sons, Troy and Elias, in the family plot, high up in the mountain range. The ceremony was attended by 11 surviving children, 40 grandchildren, and several great-grandchildren.

Before the march to the cemetery began the hands of two of the dead man's sons, long estranged brothers, were clasped over the coffin. These were "Cap" Hatfield, the father's namesake and feud lieutenant, and Dr. B. H. Hatfield of Charleston.

At the grave "Cap" Hatfield addressed "Uncle Dyke" Garrett, an old preacher and friend of the family, and told him that he had "made his peace with God and was ready to be baptized," whenever the minister would say the word.

"Done With Fighting."

"I will baptize you, boy," responded the old clergyman, "in the very hole where I baptized your pa."

"Cap" Hatfield declared he was done with fighting, that in his heart there no longer rankled malice, and that if any man sought his life's blood, he would not resist.

Anderson Hatfield was born on Mite creek, Logan county, eighty-one years ago last September. He served in the Confederate army as captain of Company A, Forty-fifth Virginia Infantry. After the war he was leader of the Hatfield clan in the Hatfield-McCoy feud, which continued 15 years, and in which 35 men and one woman died. The feud started over a lawsuit, won by a Hatfield, settling, as far as a court could, the dispute over the ownership of some hogs. Ellison, a brother of Anse, was shot to death. He was shot 15 times, as the McCoy appeal from the decision.

In the course of the feud that followed "Johns" Hatfield was accused of betraying one of the women of the McCoy family.

The McCoy's moved into Kentucky, and the feud moved too. Three McCoy boys were tied to stakes and murdered one Christmas night.

The Feud Goes On.

At another time a McCoy house was burned and a man and little girl shot. The McCoy's killed two men, "a Demsey" and "a Yancey," because they were "sympathizers" with the Hatfields. The officials of West Virginia and Kentucky had tried to intervene, but without much success. Some governors practically took sides by refusing to honor extradition papers.

Occasionally private detectives kidnapped the persons sought. Then there were trials, but the killings were renewed.

During the World war a young "Anse" Hatfield and young Perry McCoy became pals in the U. S. S. Minnneapolis.

He turned out all the gas in the station office, lay down on the floor and expected to wake beyond the Styx. He awoke later and surrendered. He was committed for trial.

EMPLOYED "NOM DE PHONE"

Few People Will Blame Mr. Kraemerlicht for Pressing John Henry Smith Into Use.

"Is Mr. Smith in?" inquired the visitor at the office of a Newark business man.

"Mr. Smith? Mr. Smith? I don't think we have any person by that name," replied the office boy.

"John Henry Smith was the name," said the caller. "He gave it to me over the telephone."

"Were you looking for John Henry Smith?" inquired a member of the firm who was passing by. "You want to see our Mr. Kraemerlicht. This is a new office boy, and he is not aware that John Henry Smith is the telephone name of Mr. Kraemerlicht. Mr. Kraemerlicht found that it was impossible to make any one understand his name over the telephone, so he simplified it to John Henry Smith. A nom de phone."

ONE GREAT TELEPHONE COMPANY FOR STATE OF ILLINOIS FORMED

Illinois Bell Succeeds Former Chicago and Central Union Companies

New Year's Day ushered in a new state-wide telephone company, for Illinois. The new company is the Illinois Bell Telephone Company. It was formed through the purchase by the Chicago Telephone Company of the Illinois properties of the Central Union Telephone Company. The new company is offered by the same men, who for years have devoted themselves to the development and operation of the Bell telephone system in this state.

B. E. Stoney, for twelve years president of the Chicago Telephone Company, continues in that office. Edgar S. Bloom, for seven years at the head of the Central Union Company, was made a vice-president, and W. R. Abbott, for many years general manager of the Chicago company, was made a vice-president and remains general manager.

Changing the name from "Chicago Telephone" and "Central Union" to "Illinois Bell" meant the passing of two well-known names in Illinois telephone history. The new company is a large one. It has 10,000 telephones of its own, and its lines connect with those of 340 other state companies having 340,000 telephones, making a total of 1,150,000 telephones which can be reached by this system in Illinois alone.

It was estimated that the new company's system of toll lines connecting cities and towns, together with the local exchanges, requires about 2,300,000 miles of wire. The new company has upward of 20,000 men and women employees.

The book cost of the property of the new company is $107,000,000. It was asserted that it would cost in excess of $200,000,000 to replace this property. During 1921, the new work laid out by the new company calls for an expenditure of $14,500,000.

The traffic department reported that it had won its long contest against the conditions prevailing for more than two years, which resulted in a lowering of the service standard. These conditions, it was said, were due to an insufficient force of operators, inexperienced operators, and many other causes. It was pointed out that most of these conditions have been removed, and that there is now a marked improvement in the service. The company's announcement contained a notice that the service is practically back to the pre-war standard.

Delay in installing telephones, also a result of war conditions, promises to be done away with, according to the company's claim, which said it was hoped that applications for service may now be cared for without delay.

Further development of the toll service throughout the state is one of the new company's chief aims. It was declared that improvements would be made which would strengthen telephone communication with the several hundred connecting companies, in the interest of a faster and better service for the whole state.

SNOW ON COUNTRY HIGHWAYS

Removal Problem of Greatest Importance Because of Greater Use of Motor Trucks.

The snow removal problem is of increasing importance because of the greater use of autos and motor trucks which find it very difficult to travel through drifts and deep snow. In most states it is the duty of the county or local road officials to remove obstructions on the highways and snow drifts certainly are obstructions, says Farm and Home. Excellent advice on this matter is given by the Iowa highway commission as follows:

Just how much money can be used for this class of road maintenance is entirely up to the individual road official to decide. He must also decide whether it is necessary to keep the road open at all times for automobiles on only for team traffic. In deciding just what to do about snow removal, the character of the road and the nature and importance of the traffic to the general public must be a determining factor.

Road officials should not be stampeded in the case of heavy snows by insistent and angry demands that all roads be immediately opened for traffic. Sometimes an attempt to open all roads for immediate use by automobiles after exceptional snow storms, might cripple the county or township road funds for the entire year. It costs money and lots of it to remove snow, so the road official must use the best judgment as to just how far he can go, always keeping in mind, however, that no road should be allowed to remain entirely closed to traffic for any undue length of time.

Should Build Stronger.

Now that the motor truck has been developed it is nothing less than a crime for highway engineers to design and build and spend the state's money for anything other than a substantial road. Delaware, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Connecticut and other progressive states are realizing this fact and are building more concrete roads or roads with a concrete base.

Bumps Injure Car.

Your car will last longer if the bumps in the road are eliminated.

For Entertainment.

The groceryman was "kidding" little Marie one day and asked her whose girl she was to which she replied: "Anna's." "Well, then, whose little girl is Maybelle?" "She belongs to mamma." "What about brother James, then?" he said. She was nonplussed for a minute, then said: "Oh, he's just for entertainment."

BUILDERS FAVOR NEW ROADS

Largest and Most Stupendous Plan for Highway Improvement Ever Proposed in World.

The building of a system of highways in this country, now being carried on at an annual cost of over $1,000,000,000, is the largest and most stupendous plan for public improvement ever projected in the history of the world, declared a speaker at the annual meeting of the American Road Builders' association at the Automobile Club of America. About 75 highway officials and others engaged in carrying on this great plan of highway improvement were present, coming in many cases from states situated a thousand miles away.

Bring Higher Rentals. Good roads bring higher rental incomes.

Some Road Materials. Some of the materials or combinations of materials which might enter into the construction of temporary roads are earth, shale, slate, chert, gravel and rock, or sand mixed with clay or gumbo. For heavy traffic on through routes pavements may be required, but these are not ordinarily classed as "country roads."

What Farmer Needs Most. Farm-to-market roads, rather than pleasure highways, are what the farmer needs most.

TAXES AUDIT YOUR TAXES

Our Attorneys are specialists on Taxation.
Co-Operation is the best way.

We have been advised that a substantial part of the general taxes levied in Lake County for the year, 1920 (collectable in 1921) are illegal, and that collection thereof can be prevented if tax-payers take proper legal steps to protect their rights before payment is made.

This association will look after the interests of any tax-payer upon the following basis: We will examine and audit any tax bill you may send us, so that you may pay the legal part promptly and resist payment of the portion thereof which attorneys employed advise are illegal; you to pay us in advance thereof $1.00 for each $100.00 or fraction thereof assessed against you up to $300.00 and a flat sum of $5.00 in all cases where the taxes assessed is $300.00 or more.

We will then have objections filed for you to the application of the County Treasurer for judgment and sale as to such portion of your taxes as are illegal, without any further expense to you if your taxes are not reduced.

If your taxes are reduced then, in addition to the initial fee above referred to, you are to pay the attorneys in charge of the case a sum equal to 25% of whatever may be saved.

If you desire to object to the payment of the illegal part of your tax, you should obtain from the office of the County Collector your tax bill, and then send such tax bill (both real and personal) to the undersigned at once, and should fill out and at the same time forward to the undersigned the contract, together with check for the initial fee.

Earthquakes at Sea.

An eruption occurring at sea is called a seauquake and the chief effect is the production of huge waves and violent commotion of the water of the sea. In 1854, during an earthquake at Siroda, Japan, the waters of a bay were first agitated, then retreated, leaving the bottom bare in places where the water had been 30 feet deep. A wave 30 feet high then rushed in and swept everything in its path. Other earthquake waves have destroyed cities and shipping; part of the destruction in the Messina earthquake was caused by a wave produced in this way.

Plants in Bedroom.

Do not have flowers or plants in the bedroom, particularly overnight. Poisonous gas is evolved from the colored parts of flowers both by night and day, and from the green parts in addition at night. It is pleasant to have flowers in a guestroom, but for the reason just set forth they should not remain in the sleeping chamber. The way to get around the difficulty is by the use of a window box.

Dominican Republic.

The Dominican Republic is located in the eastern portion of the island of Haiti, one of the largest of the West Indies, lying between a latitude of 17°30'40 and 19°28'20 north and a longitude of 68°18 and 74°51 west of Greenwich. Its boundaries are the Atlantic ocean on the north, the Mona channel on the east, the Caribbean sea on the south and the Republic of Haiti on the west.

Keep House Plants Moist.

A piece of sponge, quite wet, and kept in each house plant has been found to result in greenness and freshness instead of the withering which so often overtakes house plants. Their failure to do well is due not so much to the heat of the house as to the dryness of the atmosphere. The saturated sponge should be pressed in among the leaves and stalks as near to the center of the plant as possible.

"And I have given you my heart long ago. Kiss me, Tom."

"They sat there, closely pressed together in that narrow space, scarcely aware any longer of the danger at hand, eager only to hear each other's voice. Above the crackle of the flames, they could distinguish the intermittent crack of a rifle, and the echo of voices calling. Shelby began to dig with one hand at the pile of earth beside him so as to widen the space between his snout and the roof. The action caused his hand to revert to the luminous peril of their situation.

"It will be all over with before daylight," he said soberly, "and that will be our chance to get out."

"How do you suppose Macklin ever got through there?" she questioned wonderingly.

"That's what bothers me. Either he wasn't hurt much, or he had help. It is my notion the girl brought him out in some way. The shooting was an act of sudden anger, for which she was sorry the very next moment. They may be hiding there now, somewhere in the tunnel."

She lifted herself up and peered through the opening; the glare of the flames did not penetrate beyond the barrier of earth and she saw nothing but impenetrable blackness.

"Shall we go, and see?"

"Not yet; we are safer here, until those devils give up. You can hear their voices yet out there."

They had no way of telling time, and the hours dragged. The sound of firing had entirely ceased, and the shouts of voices died away one after the other. Shelby waited patiently, listening for the slightest sound; but, at last, could restrain himself no longer.

"I do not know how late it is," he said finally, "yet it must be nearly morning. Most of those fellows must be gone. Shall we try our luck, little girl?"

She put her hand silently into his.

CHAPTER XIII.

He led the way, finding little difficulty in crawling over the mound of earth, and Olga followed easily. The cool darkness into which they advanced was a great relief, while the sense of action restored their shattered nerves. They encountered no further obstruction of any kind, but suddenly reached a sharp turn toward the left. Shelby felt his passage around the corner, aware of the pressure of Olga's fingers on his sleeve, but his eyes could perceive nothing unusual beyond. Yet, with his first step forward, he came to a sudden halt.

"Stay where you are, senior," said a low voice, "not a word till I speak."

He caught his breath quickly, scarcely daring to set down an upflung foot. There was no doubt who that was that spoke out of the darkness.

"But I am Shelby," he blurted forth swiftly. "You have no reason to fear me."

"Shelby! How you came here? You found the trap? And—what is she with you?"

"Yes, senior. An accident revealed to us a way out. It was you, then, who took Macklin away; he was not killed?"

A moment there was silence; then she broke out suddenly, passionately, the words falling over each other in her eagerness of expression.

"I am not afraid, Senior Shelby. Not a bit! I have the pistol in my hand. I shoot. The dark set make no difference, for you are there just before me—she an you are there. Listen, then; I tell you what happen. I hate an I love—see! Then I make mistake. Madre de Dios! I know not how, but I shot the man I love. Eet was crazy thing; but I not feel him; I know I not feel him. How I know? Santa Marie! The good God would not let me believe that. What could I do? I ran away mad into the woods. I would maybe yet save him, but how? You know, senior, eet was I who shot Senior Macklin?"

"Yes, Pancha; the lady here saw your face."

"Yes, it was I, senior—I who love him. Why should eet be so? I went there not for that—not! I tell you how eet all come. Eet was because of my brother, senior—you know my brother, Juan Villamonte? He dead, senior, dead. You know how he die? Eet was a quarrel with Senior Land, an' Senior Land—they keel him, the two against the one. I not know what happen. I wait in the cabin for Juan to come, but he stay away. No one tell me eet an Indian boy come an' he tell. Then I know Juan is dead, an' I go crazy like that. I am Spanish, senior; I hate an I love—then only I hate! I would revenge my brother; I would keel the man that keel him; I care only for to do that. He was there in this cabin; I creep up an' see. Eet was dark in there, yet I saw his face. He could not see me, but I saw; Senior Macklin was there too, an' the other girl, but I care not then for them at all. I hate an' I see only the one I hate. Santa Marie! Why was eet so?"

"You shot the wrong man?"

"St. Senior. Senior Macklin, he sleep forward quick just when I fire; he drop an' I run."

Shelby felt Olga grip him and heard her voice at his ear.

"She never heard what Macklin said; don't let her know."

He crushed the question already on his lips back into his throat.

"Yes," Shelby said: "I see how it happened, now. And what did you do then, Pancha?"

She was not sobbing, but her quick breathing gave the impression in the darkness.

"What I do, senior? I pray the Virgin that I may save him. Then I remember this passage from the ravine. How I know eet? Juan and I, we live in the cabin a month; 'twas then I found eet. I was underneath when you fought, senior; then, when you were both outside I got him—"

"Macklin, you mean? He was alive?"

"Yes, senior, alive. Maybe he live, maybe he die; I know not. I do what I can. Eet took long time; even I carried him alone."

"But how did you get across that cave-in of earth?"

"Eet was not there; eet come later," she explained. "I would go back, senior, when they fired the cabin, but the earth had caved and I could not get through."

"To help us?"

"St. Senior, to help you and me. What could I do alone? That is why I tell you; why I talk. Eet is not for you, nor for me. I would save him an' only can eet be done if I have help. I do all I can—Madre de Dios, yes. But how I get him out, senior?"

"But why not call the others?"

Shelby asked suddenly in suspicion. "What danger is Macklin in?"

"You know not?" in surprise. "The Indian boy tell me—he an' Hanley. They plan eet all out. 'Twas because Juan would not be one of them they keel him. They would hold her for ransom; they say a man comes soon here who would pay much; so they try to put out of the way Senior Macklin."

"Tis to get her that Macklin go to the cabin; he fall, and then Senior Land try another way. He not know when he come that Senior Macklin get back. No one know."

Shelby smothered an oath; the whole foul plot suddenly revealed to him in all its hideousness. This then was what these fiends had been planning; it was plot within plot; criminal against criminal. He was blind not to have perceived the truth before; now it stood before him in all its sheer nakedness. Macklin's drunken boast had brought forth its full brood; Hanley, too brainless and cowardly to lead, had told all he knew to Indian Joe—embellished it, no doubt—and it was just the sort of thing the latter was eager to get his hands into—seemingly a safe game, with a good stake. Shelby reached out and drew Olga closer to him in the darkness.

"I understand, now," he said tersely. "We've got to fight this out together. All right, I'm ready. What is it you want me to do? Can Macklin walk?"

"No, senior; I think maybe he verra bad off; he not speak now for long time. Maybe you tell what we do for him."

"I'm afraid not, Pancha. I've doctored some wounds, but I'm no expert. Where is he? Oh, here."

He bent down in the dark and touched the motionless figure. His fingers sought the man's pulse, which showed weak but rapid.

"Where was the wound?"

"In the right chest, senior."

"And you have dressed and bandaged it?"

"Yes, senior; the best I could. I tore up my undershirt."

"Do you know if he bled much?"

"Not since I found him—not; eet was very little. You think maybe he live, senior?"

"I am unable to answer that, Pancha," he replied soberly, rising to his feet. "The man is evidently hurt, but weak from loss of blood and in a coma now from fever. This is no place for him. If we could get him out into the open, bandage his wound properly and get a doctor for the ball he might have a fair chance. I can say no more than that."

"A doctor! Where would there be a doctor?"

"I know of none this side of Gerlach's; an army surgeon is at the camp there; no doubt he would come."

"Gerlach! And—and he could save him, senior?"

"He might; I can promise nothing; but that would be the only hope."

"But you will help me? You pledge that?"

"I will do whatever I can," Shelby said, earnestly. "I hardly know how we are going to manage it. Once outside, we might find some poles, rig up a litter, and so get along, the three of us."

"Yes," interposed Olga sympathetically.

lently, "we must do that, if possible. He cannot be left to die alone in this horrible place. I am strong, and will help all I can. Could we now start at once?"

"Just a moment. Is there an entrance not far away, Pancha?"

"Not 50 feet, senior."

"Then we ought to hear any firing or shouting without. Everything seems quiet. Let's make the effort now."

He sent the Mexican girl on in advance, and lifted the unconscious Macklin upon his back, Olga partially supporting the helpless body. The wounded man groaned at the first movement, but lapsed into silence again, and Shelby moved slowly forward with his burden along the dark, narrow passage. It terminated in a small hole, well protected by a covert of brush, through which the fellow had to be drawn cautiously.

Once on the outside, under the cold gleam of the stars, they found themselves protected by the high banks of a gully, that turned sharply to the left, connecting with a deeper ravine. The three clustered close, and listened, but no sound broke the stillness. Satisfied they were not observed, Shelby again picked up the wounded man, and with Pancha's guiding figure barely discernible in the gloom, slowly advanced down the depression.

It was hard, slow work, as Shelby had to carefully pick his way among the stones, seeking a safe resting place for each foot. They must move noiselessly. Their only hope lay in the confidence the Indians felt in their death within the cabin. If they were assured as to this, then they had probably scattered, willing to wait until morning to search the debris for their bodies. But this they couldn't know.

As they turned into the ravine they obtained a glimpse of the burned cabin. One wall yet stood, ragged against the sky, and there was a gleam of red embers. Occasionally a gust of air sent sparks flying upward and spirals of black smoke were visible.

No moving forms could be perceived about the ruins, and it was evident the spot was still in a condition to render expedition impossible.

Huddled closely together in the shelter of the rocks the fugitives stared across the open space at the red gleam. The Mexican girl had lifted herself upon a projecting stone, and was searching the shadows with keen eyes.

"Where do we go?" Shelby questioned.

"Up the rock trail, senior; there is no other safe place."

"So I thought. Then we must get under cover before daylight. Dawn is not far off from the looks of the sky."

He paused suddenly. "What kind of a looking guy is Hanley?"

"He tall, scrawny, red whiskers."

"Then I got him; plugged the fellow through the arm. He won't want any more for awhile. Come, let's move on," he added impatiently. "It's doing no good to remain here and stare at that fire, and it is no light load I've got on my back."

The way was a rough one, strewn with stones, but well protected by high banks on either side. Pancha, seemingly knew every inch of it, for she advanced confidently, selecting the easier path. So they came to the end of the cliff, where it terminated at the bank of the creek.

The light from the slowly graying sky, overhead scarcely penetrated the depths of the ravine, and to the burden of carrying the heavy body of Macklin was added the weariness of the frequent stumbling over the stones with which the path was strewn. Olga, fighting off the deadly faintness which threatened every moment to overcome her, bore her share of the burden with a courage that moved her husband strongly, inasmuch as he felt he was nearing the end of his strength and realized what the strain must be on her.

The events of the next hour trembled in Shelby's mind more like some terrible dream than a remembrance. He was conscious of being excessively worn, hungry, tired. His mind did not function, yet he clung doggedly to his task, with teeth clinched, and every muscle aching from the effort. Macklin moaned once or twice, but without regaining consciousness, and twice Shelby felt compelled to lay the wounded man on the ground, while he regained sufficient strength to proceed. Once they endeavored to shift the burden, Olga insisting on helping him to bear the man. But this proved impracticable, and again Shelby shouldered the body and staggered blindly up stream.

The sky was gray, a heavy mist shrouding the valley below, when they finally attained the opening into the trail sought. Nothing could be seen of their enemies, and, convinced that, as yet, there was no pursuit, the three crept breathlessly into the shadow of the bushes, dragging the unconscious Macklin with them. For some minutes Shelby lay motionless, struggling for breath, feeling that all strength had deserted him. He scarcely realized that Olga had lifted his head into her lap, and was wiping the beads of perspiration from his face.

At last, however, his eyes opened, and he saw her bending over him. The man's lips broke into an effort to smile.

"Some soft, ain't I, little girl?" he muttered, "but gee! That was a pull, and I was about all in. Where's Pancha?"

"Back there, where she can look out. Is it much farther?"

"To the cave, you mean? Yes, it is a hard climb yet, but I will have it easier. I'll be all right presently; we'll cut some stakes, and make a litter."

"I don't know what is the matter with me," he apologized, ashamed of his weakness. "Hungry, and overstrained, I guess. Maybe I ought to have left the fellow there."

"Oh, no, Tom! We couldn't do that. The poor thing is nearly crazy."

"Pancha? Yes, I know; but she'd be a heap sight better off with the guy dead."

"But she will not believe that. She thinks it is all her fault, and—and she is such a wild, passionate little thing. I would do anything to save her for her."

"There is about one chance in a thousand. Still he's just about crazy enough to make it. We sure don't owe him anything."

"I am not so certain of that," she said softly. "I wonder when I would have known my husband, but for him? I doubt if you half believe all I confessed to you now."

"I can scarcely realize it is true, but believe it or not."

The motionless girl at the end of the rock suddenly turned her head, and glanced back at them with her piercing black eyes.

"Senior, is it true that you love her—your wife?"

"True, of course, Pancha. I told you so before I told her."

"I am sure you love her."

"I am sure you love her," Pancha spoke up Olga quickly, a flash burning red on her cheeks. "I have no other ambition."

"But the money! You rich, he say that, Senior Macklin. You not even care for that?"

"Not very much—no. I know nothing about it, and am perfectly content if it never comes. You must know what I mean—you have loved?"

"Yes, senior; I have loved, and would still love; money is nothing, Senior."

"Yes, Pancha."

"I think as I lie here, what it was best to do. They all down there, I cannot see yet for the fog, but I hear sounds. Pretty soon they will know perhaps. They hunt the burned cabin an' find no bone, no flesh. What will they do?"

"Land will suspect the truth."

"Tis so, perhaps; yet I believe we left no trail, senior. It was all rock an' water; even the Sioux cannot follow that. You know the way now?"

"To the cave—yes."

"It is safe. But if the senior lives he must have a doctor. You tell me that, and there is but one way; I must ride."

Shelby straightened up, instantly grasping her purpose.

"You mean you will leave us here to go on alone?"

"Yes, senior; eet is best. They will not stop me; they will not know. Unless I meet Senior Land there is no danger; perhaps even he will not suspect, or interfere. There are horses there, and I ride often—sometimes even up onto the mesa; no one will care."

"You are sure you can pass?"

"I am sure I will pass," she said firmly. "I ride for hee life, senior."

It was the better plan, nor could Shelby deny the probability of its success. No one, unless possibly it might be Land, or Hanley, had any reason to suspect her now. It was a long journey to Gerlach's, too long to be made on foot, and if the girl went with them up the trail, every effort at rescue would be delayed.

"You are right, Pancha," he admitted. "We'll get him up there some way. But you better go now, before the fog rises."

"Yes, senior."

She came over and knelt beside Macklin, who was moaning slightly, his head resting on a pillow made by Shelby's coat. As she bent over him his eyes partially opened, but with no light of intelligence in them; they were dull, listless.

"Senior, senior," she sobbed, pressing his hand between both her own, "I am going to ride for you."

Some angel of mercy must have put the words on his lips, for certainly he knew her not, yet faintly, there came from his lips the cry:

"Pancha! I want you, Pancha!"

She must have understood, known, and yet the comfort of that call was hers.

She looked at him dry-eyed, motionless; then bent and kissed his lips. Slowly, regretfully she arose to her feet, and faced them, her cheeks white.

"Tis all," she said simply, "now I go."

She vanished without a sound, gliding through the fringe of bushes and down the steep bank to the protection of the creek. They were alone, but with their own work to do. Shelby went at his with quiet efficiency. Selecting two stout limbs, similar in size and length, he ran these through the arms of his strong corsetry jacket, binding them into position by two cross-pieces, hastily prepared, and lashed firmly with strips torn from his neckerchief. Macklin, now once again silent, and motionless, his eyes closed, was lifted gently onto the outspread coat, his limbs upheld by one of the cross-bars, and then the jacket buttoned securely about him, forming a swinging cradle finely adapted for the purpose. Shelby straightened up, quite himself again.

"Now I Go."

"There, that will answer nicely," he said confidently. "It is bound to be a hard climb, but we'll take our time to it and rest when we are tired. No one can see us from below after we once pass the point yonder."

"Is the trail up hill all the way?" asked the girl, her eyes searching the steep face of the bluff.

"Yes, pretty sharp at times, but we'll manage. It follows a deep cleft through the rocks, and once found cannot be lost. I'll take this end; that will give me the most of the weight, and you lead the way; take it slowly and you'll be all right."

They picked the litter up between them, Olga relieved to discover how lightly, thus distributed, her share of the burden rested upon her. She was able to advance easily and pick her way among the rocks without experiencing great discomfort. The weight of the man's body came far heavier upon Shelby, but the rest and change had largely restored his strength and he felt no doubt of his ability to sustain this end of the burden. Unable to see just where he was placing his feet in the stony path, he stumbled occasionally, causing the wounded man to groan in some sudden spasm of pain; yet it was evident he did not suffer greatly. The trail they followed had so impressed itself on his memory that he recalled every turn clearly and could call out directions to her in a low voice.

"Turn sharply to the right there; we will have to hold the litter higher to get by that rock; here is the only point exposed, once in the shadow of these trees the way is completely covered. Yes, we can move rapidly around this point; from now on there are rocks on both sides. Take it easy, and if you need to rest, say so."

The Preacher's Topic.

Billy, not very fond of Sunday school, was promised a dime every time he remembered the sermon. For once he expressed great interest.

"Just think, daddy, it was about flying machines." "What?" said daddy, "you're mistaken." And he answered: "No, sir, I'm not. The teacher said Esau sold his birthright to his brother Jacob."

Moundsville, W. Va.—"I had taken doctor's medicine for nearly two years because my periods were irregular, came every two weeks, and I would suffer with bearing-down pains. A lady told me of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and how much good it had done her daughter, so I took it and now I am regular every month and have no pain at all. I recommend your medicine to everyone and you may publish my testimonial, hoping that the Vegetable Compound does some other girl the good it has done me."—Mrs. GEORGE TEGARDEN, 915 Third Street, Moundsville, W. Va.

How many young girls suffer as Mrs. Tegerden did and do not know where to turn for advice or help. They often are obliged to earn their living by toiling day in and day out no matter how hard the pain they have to bear. Every girl who suffers in this way should try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and if she does not get prompt relief write to the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Massachusetts, about her health. Such letters are held in strict confidence.

CIRCLES GLOBE IN BOOK HUNT

University Librarian Wanders Wide in Search of Volumes Needed by Institution.

PICKS UP RARE BARGAINS

London Always Good Hunting Ground for Book Buyer, and Readjustment Is Bringing Valuable Collections Upon Market.

Palo, Alto, Cal.—George T. Clark, librarian of the university, is back at Stanford, after a year of travel in which he circled the globe. He carried with him a "want list" comprising 3,170 volumes for which the university had been seeking for some years but which, by reason of their rarity or inaccessibility, it had not been successful in acquiring. Aside from purchase from the list, Mr. Clark was in a position to take advantage of favorable opportunities as they might arise for the acquisition of other desirable material. Altogether about 11,000 volumes will be added to the library as the direct result of the tour.

Found in Japan and China. Japan, the first country visited, did not yield much on his "want list," but otherwise proved bibliographically interesting. At the Imperial university library in Tokyo he was shown, among other treasures there preserved, a deed making conveyance of real property in the ninth century, a Buddhist manuscript about 1,000 years old and the first set of movable type (wooden) used in Japan.

Of particular interest, however, was the George E. Morrison Asiatic library, probably the best collection in existence of books about China. Doctor Morrison, who died in England a few months ago, was the representative of the London Times at Peking from 1895 to 1912, and afterward political adviser to the Chinese government. Writing of his library, Doctor Morrison said: "It is the result of an effort sustained during more than twenty years in forming a comprehensive collection of books, papers, pamphlets, prints and engravings dealing with the Chinese at home and abroad, and with China and her dependencies, past and present, in every subject and in every European language." The library, comprising about 25,000 volumes, was purchased by Baron Iwasaki in 1917 and removed to Tokyo, where it is planned to erect a permanent home for it and make it available to scholars. Mr. Mikinosuke Ishida is its librarian.

Discoveries in London. London is always a good hunting ground for the book buyer, and furthermore, the readjustment now in process is an aftermath of the war is bringing many valuable collections upon the market. The foreign exchange rates also make this a favorable time for Americans to buy. Librarian Clark particularly enjoyed his experiences with the English book sellers, and was highly impressed, both by their bibliographic information and the accurate knowledge of their own stocks, often running into many thousands of volumes and continually changing. For example, a particular edition of Shakespeare published in 1740 was being sought, and a certain dealer offered one published in 1752, explaining that the text was identical with that of the 1740 edition, a statement easily verified. In another instance a dealer gave the early history of a certain medical journal, begun in the middle of the last century, and which had gone through various transformations with changes of name. A dealer in the south of London showed a surprising knowledge of his stock, which ranged from 30,000 to 40,000 volumes. When Mr. Clark submitted to him a list of various editions of Shakespeare desired, the dealer looked over the list, said he had only one of them on hand, and turning to an assistant, told him to go upstairs and get that copy of the Johnson & Stevens Shakespeare from the top of the right hand side.

In London Mr. Clark was able to obtain 12 editions of Shakespeare, which the English department of the university has been eager to obtain. Among the most interesting of these is that of 1709, published in 1709-10, the first illustrated Shakespeare published, and the beautiful Halliwell edition, published in 16 volumes, between 1853 and 1865.

Much Philosophical Lore

In England also he was able to complete the Stanford set of the Royal Society of London philosophical transactions, obtaining volumes covering the period from 1665 to 1800. It has been said that if all other records of modern scientific achievement were wiped out the records of this society would preserve everything of value in that direction. Comparatively few American libraries have the complete set. Mr. Clark was able to obtain these early volumes through the fact that he happened to be in London just in time to reap the advantage of a British nobleman's consolidating three estates, a process which threw on the market this valuable set.

At Cambridge, England, Mr. Clark met a bookman who had been connected with one firm for 40 years in premises which had been used as a bookshop for 300 years. Another instance of life-long service was met in the case of the curator of the map division of Cambridge university library. The collection includes 150,000 maps, which it is this man's ambition to classify and file and physically care for in such manner as to make each readily available. He has been on the job 40 years, and expects to have the task accomplished in the next ten years, on the expiration of which he will be eligible for retirement.

How Pepps Is Guarded.

A desire on Mr. Clark's part to see the Peppys library at Magdalene college, Cambridge, was not encouraged, it being vacation time and the librarian absent. A bookman explained that he would not be allowed to handle any of the books, anyway, as they were kept locked in a case. Pepps stipulated that in the event of a book being lost, the whole collection should be transferred to Trinity.

college, so Magdalene is not taking any chances.

As a general rule out-of-print books are most successfully sought in the country where they were published, but there are exceptions. Mr. Clark found the best collection of the reports of the Indian archeological survey, not in India, but at Edinburgh, and a set of the Journal of the American Oriental Society published at New Haven he also picked up at the same place.

One of the items on the "want list" was Tietze's "Collection des Poetes Champennois Anterieurs au XVIIe Siecle," a set of four volumes published at Reims during the years 1847 to 1864. Only 75 copies were printed and naturally the work is very rare. Mr. Clark found a copy in the office of one of the Paris booksellers. It was beautifully bound in full calf and, in the dealer's opinion, its value was further enhanced by the fact that it bore the book plate of M. Cleeuot, a name well known to users of champagne.

Two Deer With One Bullet

Swansey, N. H.—The killing of two deer with a single bullet is reported by Marshall Hill of this town. Hill fired at a large buck, which immediately bolted. When he reached the spot where the buck had stood he found that he had killed a doe. Following the trail a short distance, the hunter came upon the body of the buck. The bullet had passed through the neck of the buck into the head of the doe.

Ex-Yank's Re-Created Voice

Cords Destroyed in Battle of the Argonne Are Replaced by False Ones.

St. Louis.—Rudolph M. Bowman, a former soldier, who was wounded in the Argonne battle in such a manner that his vocal cords were destroyed, has regained his ability to speak.

His case is the only instance in the knowledge of the specialists of the Central Institute for the Deaf, where he has been treated at government expense, in which speech has been re-created after the complete loss of the vocal cords.

Bowman's voice sounds normal, except for a slight hoarseness, as that of a person suffering from a cold. An explanation of this scientific achievement is that the ventricular bands, or false vocal cords, have been made to function like the true cords.

By practicing certain vocal exercises in a systematic way, these muscles, originally inactive, have come to function automatically, and a good voice of volume, flexibility and range has been created.

Mule Route Thief

Ratcliff, N. C.—A terrible racket the other night in the barn of A. Johnson, a farmer near here, announced that a milk thief had met his Waterloo at the business end of a farm mule. Johnson had planted the mule in the stall of a cow which the thief had been milking at night. When the farmer reached the barn, shotgun in hand, he found a battered milk pail, a wrecked milking stool, a hat, but no thief.

SKIPPER REGRETTED HIS FIB NOT A TERM OF OPPROBRIUM

Persistent Questioner, in the Classic Language of the Street, "Got Back at Him."

The deep-sea fisherman often has a sharp tongue and is not likely to get the worst of a verbal duel. But George, the skipper of a Yarmouth trawler, who figures in "North Sea Fishers and Fighters" by Mr. Walter Wood, certainly met with his match once whether he knew it or not.

"There's land people who come and bother you with foolish questions," he complained in recounting the hardships of a skipper's life. "I try to put 'em off, but can't allus do it. There was an old lady who worried me past endurance with her questions, asking if the herrin's were caught in barrels, as she'd sometimes seen 'em that way in shops. I told her no, and then she aggravated me to that extent that I told the only fib I ever spoke in my life.

"How do you kill 'em when you've caught 'em?" she asked.

"We bite off their heads," I answered.

"She looked at the catch of herrin's we had. 'My! My!' she murmured, walking away. 'How tired your poor jaws must be!'"

Canada's Fuel Resources.

The fuel resources of Canada are situated in the extreme east and west and the western part of Alberta; the lignite coals are situated in the provinces of Alberta and Saskatchewan, but lying between the limits of these deposits is a great stretch of territory devoid of coal measured by economic value. The 12,000 square miles of peat bogs are situated in this area.

Most people are more than satisfied with their misfortunes, but not with their fortunes.

Today's Geography

LOWER CALIFORNIA

Communication makes for civilization. The airplane promises to make accessible many hitherto obscure regions, not along main lines of steamer or railway travel.

For example, the average American had little reason heretofore to go to Lower California. Recently, however, this peninsula has been the resting place for airplanes in flights from the Pacific coast of the United States to the Panama Canal.

Frederick Simplich writes to the National Geographic society as follows: "The long, boot-shaped peninsula that swings down off the left-hand corner of the United States belongs to Mexico and is known on Mexican maps as 'Baja,' or Lower California. Early Spanish maps of America showed California as an island, due, no doubt, to limited explorations of this peninsula.

Scarcely known as it is to the average American, this 600-mile-long strip of rocks, peaks, brush-grown mesas, and rare, fertile little valleys is a favorite haunt for many Yankee naturalists, fishermen, and big-game hunters; and here and there, in the more favored, well-watered, grassy spots of the higher ranges, hardy American gentlemen have built their adobe homes, where they enjoy the limitless freedom of vast unfenced areas. The Circle Bar company of Ojai Negroes Ranch runs cattle over a leased territory of two and a half million acres, and a British corporation holds title to something like fifteen million acres.

"Away down at peaceful, picturesque La Paz, where Cortez repulsed his schooners and where, centuries later, Walker, the Yankee filibuster, raised his flag, another Yankee today runs a busy little tannery, turning out 600 sides of good leather every day, for American shoe factories. Here and there, in the hills and valleys, Americans are delving for metals or growing the staple fields.

"But the country as a whole, owing to its many desert, waterless areas, is but sparsely settled, and, as one writer says, 'In all its turbulent, romantic history, since the halcyon days when Sir Francis Drake dropped his pirate anchor in Magdalena Bay, no wheeled vehicle has traversed its rough and tortuous length.'

"Itch as are its mines and fat as are its herds of cattle, its chief source of wealth lies in the cotton-growing regions around Mexicali.

"At the Colorado delta, at the head of the Gulf of California, which separates the Lower California peninsula from Sonora, more than at any other point on the whole border, the interests of the United States and of Mexico are closely joined. This is due to the singular topography of that region (part of it is below sea-level) and to the diversion of water from the Colorado river in the opinion of many irrigation engineers and political students, this peculiarly delicate problem of irrigation and water rights, as between planters on the American and Mexican sides of the line, respectively, can be solved satisfactorily only by some joint treaty between the two republics, involving either the fixing of a neutral zone or the sale of a small strip of territory."

WILL ELEPHANTS GO THE WAY OF BUFFALOES?

Will the African elephants soon have to be protected, as are buffaloes in the United States, lest they become extinct?

The peaceful progress of civilization is the menace which the elephant faces. Already the South African Cape council has decided to exterminate the elephants because they despoil crops and sometimes kill agricultural laborers.

Sir Harry Johnston, famous African authority, tells of his experience with African elephants in a communication to the National Geographic society.

"If, after many years of trials, the African elephant is pronounced to be hopeless as a domestic animal (and it should be remembered that most male African elephants in captivity have shown themselves to be hopelessly savage), then at least for its indigenous ivory the creature is worth preserving as an asset to the state. If the Indian elephant shows himself to be more docile than the African elephant, it must be remembered, on the other hand, that he is of very little value for his ivory.

"One day a baby elephant was presented to me by an Uganda chief. It is a sad thing to relate, but three men were killed in attempting to capture the first elephant. I had expressed a wish one day for some elephants to experiment with in domestication, and the natives, with their usual desire to please me, were so ardent in their determination to gratify my wish and so determined in their pursuit of the young elephant that the mother elephant knocked over and killed three of them. But finally they succeeded in their object, capturing the calf and to my great surprise it trotted into camp behind one of the men.

CHARMING SET OF RED FOX

A set of red fox is smart for the young girl's tailor and is one of the fashions of the present season.

EASIER TO MAKE WEARABLES

Numerous Articles of Apparel Only Partially Completed May Be Only Tailored and Finished at Home.

Many women try to make some of their clothes themselves. This is difficult for anybody not trained to sew a fine seam, and few of us do know how to sew well nowadays. But there are so many things half made, or so many parts of things ready made that one may buy in the shops that it is worth while making use of these things to help out on the difficult task of home sewing.

For one thing, there are ready-made linings for bodices, in white and black, in muslin and in net. These are a great help, for they give the foundation of the frock ready to start on.

There are hat linings, varying in price from a thin silk and cotton one at about 40 cents to a stiff tulle one at a dollar.

There are lace petticoat ruffles, all ready to sew on a muslin foundation. There are silk petticoat ruffles, equally ready to sew into place on a new or old petticoat foundation.

There are half-made skirts—semi-made, that is, far more than half-made. They need only sewing up and finishing off. They come in plain wool, in plaid silk or in tailored finish in different fabrics.

There are net overdresses that need only the making of a satin or georgette slip to convert them into charming evening frocks.

There are girdles of ribbon, with long silk flanges that add a finish to any gown.

There are all sorts of lovely neckwear that make the finishing off of the neck of a gown an easy matter. With all these things to help one out, the matter of making clothes is not so difficult, even if you don't know much about sewing.

FEW ALL WHITE LACE FROCKS

Dyed, Decorations Favored, Cream Tints, Tan, Ceru and Tobacco Brown Predominating.

It is a lace season, no doubt of that, but rarely does one see a perfectly white lace frock. Laces are dyed now in the most entrancing shades and most favored are cream tints, tan, ceru and tobacco brown. Black lace is used extensively and there are exquisitely lovely laces in peach tint. These last are mounted over pastel silk or satin for dance frocks. Charming lace and net hives are dyed navy blue, plum or brown for afternoon costumes and some of these laces are sewed with self-color spangles that give a very rich and brilliant effect.

A charming frock is of accordion plaited brown satin, the plaited skirt edged with brown dotted net. A sash of the dotted net, with huge, airy loops is tied around the waist. The bodice and sleeves are of the brown satin without net trimming.

VELVET FOR MIDDY BLOUSES

Fabric Among Other Favorites for Construction of the Popular and Seasonable Garment.

In the lineup of appropriate midday garments a great many fabrics are approved. Serge and flannel, of course, are staple and always good style; and this season wool jersey cloth and velvet middie to be worn with either plain or plaid wool separate skirts are in high favor. Crepe de chine is also frequently used.

One very smart little black velvet smock recently featured with a plaid wool skirt was drawn in a tulle at the waistline on either side and caught with a silk cord and tassel.

Touches of wool embroidery in contrasting color trim the wool jersey blouses, or else they are finished all about the edges with bands of heavy wool crochet, the same material frequently being used to form a belt.

GERMANY GIVES UP MUCH COAL

Heads List of Goods Yjelded to Allies Under Treaty.

DYESTUFFS NEXT ON LIST

Detailed List of Supplies Turned Over to Allies is Made Public by Reparations Body—Largest Share Goes to France, Belgium Next and Italy Third—Dyestuffs and Lorges Allocated to the United States—Seventeen Cables Delivered.

Paris.—A detailed list of the various deliveries made by Germany to the allies in execution of the treaty of Versailles during the first year, it was in force, has just been issued by the reparations commission. The deliveries were made on the reparations account up to December 31. The chief item is coal, amounting in all to 17,818,840 tons. Next in importance on the list are dyestuffs, of which 10,787,527 kilos were delivered.

Other deliveries were: Steamers, sailing vessels and fishing boats, 2,054,729 tons; inland navigation materials, 38,720 tons; live stock, 360,170 head; seed, 6,802,588 kilos; ammonium sulphate, 10,000 tons; pharmaceutical products, 57,823 kilos; rolling stock, 4,571; trucks, 120,553; motor lorries, 5,000; fixed railway materials, 140,000 tons; agricultural machinery, 131,505.

Restitution of Articles Seized.

In addition to the deliveries placed to her credit, article 233 of the treaty provides that Germany shall effect restitution of objects of every nature and securities and cash taken away, seized, or sequestered.

The records for the year show the following deliveries under this article: To France: Agricultural machinery, 13,540 machines; industrial machinery, 134,101 tons; locomotives, 13; trucks, 6,631.

To Belgium: Agricultural machinery, 14 machines; industrial machinery, 87,040 tons; locomotives, 234; trucks, 12,897.

There has also been restoration in other things, including certain securities and a quantity of furniture and objects of art, but no figures are given.

Seventeen Cables Delivered.

The list contains various cables which have been delivered and which have not yet been allocated by the expert conference at Washington, to which the work was entrusted. In all there are 17 cables in various parts of the world.

The commission points out that while valuations have been reached on most of these, certain questions of principle remain undetermined. It is also explained that the figures recently published of German payments against the 20,000,000,000 gold marks under article 235 of the treaty are much greater than the real figures.

The allocation by the reparations commission of Germany's deliveries shows that France received the largest share, with Belgium second and Italy third. The United States appears on the list with two items—dyestuffs, of which she received 1,300,000 kilos, and lorries, numbering 1,314.

Great Britain received 1,177,820 gross tons of shipping and 3,112,912 kilos of dyestuffs and 1,243 lorries. England did not share in any of the other deliveries.

France received 14,210,532 tons of coal; Italy, 1,018,534 tons; Belgium, 1,401,620; and Luxembourg, 588,008 tons.

BLOUSE IS USEFUL

Costume Garment Most Woefully Abused, Writer Declares.

Prominent Part of Outfit Seldom Worn Properly—So That It Looks Entirely Right.

One of the most useful garments under the sun is the costume blouse, and one of the most woefully abused, says a fashion correspondent. Do you often see it worn properly? Few are the times when it looks entirely right of the same family as the rest of the costume of which it has become a part.

It will be a dreadful blow to some women to be told that the costume blouse is not really smart when it is worn with a suit skirt. It is all right when the coat is buttoned in place, but when that outer covering is removed, how different! This costume blouse has its place, to be sure, but it is not with the tailored or even the semi-tailored suit. There only the tailored blouse or the soft, hand-made French blouse has a rightful place and a sufficient reason to call itself a part of the whole.

There is the blouse made of an all-over brocade or of an all-over piece of embroidery. It is one of the hand-somest that has been produced in this most prolific season, and it is apt to be made over quite plain and simple lines, with no added trimming. It comes in the most beautiful and rich colors, and it should most properly be worn with a skirt that is low in tone, soft in texture and full enough in width to make it a graceful foundation for the brilliancy of the waist.

There is no question that the blouse type of frock is one of the most economical of the varieties of costume.

All-Over Pattern in Costume Blouse.

that can be gained by the aid of one simple skirt. But that is no reason, surely, why the thing should be done badly, and why the wrong blouse should be combined with the wrong skirt. The blouse, in other words, should be used to the full value of its design and should never be allowed to be that thing which is just thrown on to make something that "will do."

CARE OF HAIR IS IMPORTANT

Avoid Drying Quickly With Artificial Heat; Good Soap, Brush and Comb Necessary.

To prevent the hair from splitting, here are a few things to remember, says the Woman's Home Companion. Avoid drying the hair quickly with artificial heat. Don't use hot curling irons too often. Consider carefully what soap you use. Never use one with drying qualities. See that your hair brush is in good condition. Worn bristles and combs with broken teeth are one cause of split hairs. The best brush to use, whether your hair is dry, oily or normal, is one not always so easy to get. It has the bristles arranged in bunches, with the middle bristles the longest. Don't brush your hair while it is damp, and don't use too soft a brush. For general use, have a brush with moderately stiff bristles. To give luster to the hair a soft brush is all right, but for daily cleansing use avoid it.

Pressing Tucks.

To press tucks so they may look decorative and not have the usual flattened appearance, stand the iron up on end and run the tucks over the iron, holding the material firmly between the hands with the tucks running downward. In this way the material between and beneath the tucks will be pressed as well as the tucks.

An Attractive Fur Collar.

The high collar of double furs is a novel idea for warm coats. For instance, the collar itself may be made of squirrel, and the lining imitation ermine. Wide cuffs to match should be turned back on the sleeves. These collars are large and picturesque. They can be muffled up round the face or laid flat on the shoulders like a cape.
